Pier vandalized again, reward being offered

BY D.C. HARVILL

Ulman Avenue Pier has been vandalized—again.

A city employee discovered Friday morning that someone had busted 23 out of 26, supposedly vandal-proof lights that had been installed just over a month ago.

The estimated cost of the damage is $1,863 dollars.

"With the cost of labor, the cost will probably be over $2,000," said Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Franckiewicz Jr.

Installation of the pier's lighting system was funded by the county with city management.

According to Franckiewicz, the lights were ordered with heavier hardware and housed in wooden boxes so they would be safe from vandalism.

Earlier this year a wooden gazebo on the end of the pier was stolen. That case resulted in an arrest and a guilty plea.

The offender remains in jail. "If the person is caught we will push for prosecution to the fullest," Franckiewicz said.

Due to the dollar amount of the damage, the vandals will be charged with a felony.

"We are going to put an end to this if I have to camp out on the pier myself," said James Rutherford, Bay St. Louis councilman-at-large.

Rewards totaling $300 have been offered for the arrest and conviction of the vandals. Kelvin Schultz of Big E Seafood and Grocery has offered $200 and Hancock County Supervisor Michael Ladner has put up $100. Anyone with information on the case should call the Bay St. Louis Police Department at 467-9221.

Smith brings Washington delegation to Ammo Plant

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Hancock County Supervisors report they felt optimistic after meeting with a contingency of officials at the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant on Friday.

U.S. Congressman Larkin Smith, representatives from the U.S. Army, Mason Chamberlain, Inc., Government Accounting Office and Government Operations Office met with the Hancock County Supervisors and Port and Harbor Director Harold 'Buz' Olsen, Friday at the U.S. Army Ammunition Plant which has been reported to be closed in the near future.

Supervisor President Ronald Cuevas stated, "I, as well as the other supervisors, feel a lot more optimistic since the meeting. We feel there are options which definitely can be worked out to maintain the operation of the facility which employees some 350 Hancock residents."

The plant is the largest employer located at the John C. Stennis Space Center and employs more than 1,700.

Cuevas said, the plant recently added approximately 40 workers to help fill production needs at the facility which manufactures M-483 artillery shells. The shell is a 155-millimeter projectile containing 88 grenades that are dispersed in flight over a battlefield.

The facility now has orders which will keep it open until December, 1989, Cuevas stated.

The General Accounting Office, (GOA), in a May report, said a plan to mothball the plant would make it difficult to reopen in the event of war.

That report said shells produced at the Hancock County plant cost $1,100 each while the same shell only cost $400 each at plants in Kansas and Tennessee.

Officials were told the cost per shell now is $417 at the Mississippi facility and that cost reports by the GOA in May were out of date.

The plant, with a price tag of about $622 million, began production in 1984 and is operated by Mason Chamberlain, Inc. for the U.S. Army.

Funds for operation of the plant have to be appropriated by the House Appropriations

Stiffer DUI fines begin on July 1st

BY D.C. HARVILL

Those who drink and drive in Mississippi soon may find themselves behind bars instead of in front of them—prison bars.

Under a new law, effective July 1, those convicted of driving under the influence may be sentenced to up to five years in the state penitentiary.

A first-time offender guilty of operating a vehicle with a blood alcohol count of .10 percent can be fined up to $1,000 and sentenced to up to 24 hours in jail. Also, the offender's license will be suspended until he successfully completes an alcohol safety program.

"It will probably increase the number of trials for first offenders because it increases the amount of fine but the jail time is still 24 hours. What do you have to lose. If I had my way, I would raise the penalty time to six months. You don't scare many people with a fine, but with jail time you scare everyone," Circuit Judge James Thomas said.

"I'm pleased to see they've made it a felony after the third conviction," Thomas added.

Upon a second conviction within a five-year period the offender can be fined up to $1,000 and not less than $600 and sentenced to not less than 48 hours in jail up to one year.

The second-time offender's license will be suspended for two years. In lieu of imprisonment, the convicted may be sentenced to from 10 days to one year of community service.

The penalty for a third conviction within five years will be a fine of up to $1,000 but not less than $800 and a jail term of up to one year but not less than 30 days.

The third-time offenders license will be suspended for five years.

A fourth DUI conviction will be a felony and carry a 30-day to five-year prison term. The fine will be from $2,000 to $5,000 and license suspension will be for five years.

A license suspension may be shortened by successful treatment of the offender's alcohol or drug abuse problem.

The under the law DUI cases will not be eligible for non-adjudicated sentencing in which a conviction is not placed on an offender's record.

"I'm sure its a good law but I'm not sure its going to be a deterrent to drinking and driving. I also wonder where they are going to put all the people that are going to be convicted; they don't have any room in the prisons now," Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said.

According to statistics prepared by the Mississippi Department of Public Safety, approximately 50 percent of all traffic fatalities in the state are alcohol related.

"You can pass all the laws you want but if you don't enforce them they aren't worth the paper they are printed on. It has been proven that DUI laws save lives if they are enforced," Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn said.

According to Dorn, Waveland has not had an alcohol-related fatality in the past four years.

Judges, amendments to be chosen Tuesday

BY DENA BISNETTE

Four judiciary elections and three proposed constitutional amendments will be on Tuesday's ballot.

The three Democratic nominees for the three Chancery Court Judge posts are unopposed. They include William L. "Bill" Stewart for Place One;

Jason H. Floyd Jr., Place Two; and J.S. "Johnny" Morris, Place Three.

The Circuit Court Judge election, due to a federal judge's decision which has delayed the election for about two years, is being conducted under an unusual procedure.

Instead of voting as they ordinarily would, voters have the choice of voting for one, two or three of the four candidates. The top three will take the three positions available.

The candidates include three Democratic incumbents, Jerry O. Terry, James E. Thomas and Kosta N. Vlahos, and a Republican nominee, William M. Frisbie.

The first two of the proposed amendments would remove some outdated language from the Mississippi Constitution.

One of the proposed amendments would repeal a legislative prohibition against the construction, operation or lease of a railroad by any foreign corporation or association.

The second proposal would delete the provisions in the state constitution which refer to a poll tax, a four-month school term and a county common school fund.

The third proposal, however, deals with future amendments. It provides that amendments may be unlimited in scope and may amend, repeal or add one or more sections or articles.

The proposal would also per-

Act extends unemployment benefits

Workers who were laid off from three companies operating throughout Mississippi may be eligible for additional services and benefits through the provisions of the Trade Act.

The Trade Act (TA) provides additional weeks of unemployment benefits to a person who has exhausted their regular unemployment benefits. An additional 26 weeks of TA benefits may be provided for an individual to complete an approved training course.

Persons eligible to participate must have been laid off or have suffered a reduction in work from an industry whose business has suffered a decline due to competition of foreign imports. Areas affected by imports include the oil and gas, garment, electronic and automobile industries.

The following companies whose workers were either temporarily or permanently laid off or whose hours were reduced between the following dates, have been approved for participation in the TA program:

Exeter Drilling Co., headquartered in Denver, Colo.—on or after Jan. 1, 1986;
Zapata Offshore Co., headquartered in Houston, Texas—on or after Oct. 1, 1985; and Milpark Drilling Fluids (formerly Hughes Drilling Fluids), headquartered in Houston, Texas—on or after Oct. 1, 1985.

Workers who feel they are eligible for this program should contact the nearest claims center office of the Mississippi Employment Security Commission for more information.

Some officials think the plant can be retooled for less than it would cost to place it on standby status.

GOA is also worried that the electronic systems at the heart of the automated factory, the first constructed in the U.S. since 1945, may not work after being mothballed for years.

Cuevas indicated the original GOA request was to just consider ammunition, but is now are in the process of evaluating the Ammo Plant with other facilities which produce ammunition too.

"There are now a lot of factors being involved, such a production cost, plant capability, modernization and diversity," Cuevas said.

It may be December before the final appropriations are set, and "It is good that everyone is working on both a local and federal level to try and make sure the facility will not close in Hancock County."

Mississippi and Louisiana's Washington delegations are all working to keep the facility open, Cuevas said.

Reflections On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Desiring people, not things

A famous movie producer recently purchased the home of Bing Crosby for $10 million, then promptly had it demolished. As soon as the huge piece of land had been cleared, he had a contractor begin building a house—if you can believe it—which will cover an entire acre. Surely, enough to get lost in.

Within a few weeks after that bit of transaction, the same producer announced that he and his wife were about to get a divorce. Were the two events related or unrelated? If related, was it a chicken-egg relationship? Which came first?

That's none of your business, you say? True. And yet, not true. We are our sister's keeper. We are our brother's keeper. While Jesus would be the first one to reprimand us for gossiping about any sister or brother, he would likewise be the first to upbraid us for not questioning their conduct and for not learning from it.

In no case, of course, are we claiming to pass judgment, for we certainly do not know whether we would have acted any better had we been under the same circumstances.

Nonetheless, without being judgemental, we can question the Christian wisdom of becoming so engrossed, in our own measure, in such material ventures.

The unavoidable fact is that Jesus warned us repeatedly against concentrating on material things to the neglect of people; against making people feel cheap because of our attachment to and preference for things material; against setting up such a kingdom here that we may overlook the kingdom hereafter.

"Do not lay up for yourselves an earthly treasure. Moths and rust corrode; thieves break in and steal. Make it your practice instead to store up heavenly treasure, which neither moths nor rust corrode nor thieves break in and steal. Remember, where your treasure is, there your heart is also." (Matthews 6:19-21)

It is an awful put-down, a deadly one in terms of human relationships, to convey to a spouse in so many words or through so many actions: "You are not the priority in my life. You do come in second—maybe. At any rate, my house is first, or my matchless wheels, or my multimillion-dollar nest egg, or my yachts, or my fame, or my ego, or a combination of all these—and more!"

The peerless wisdom of Jesus peeps through our lives only gradually, as we attempt daily to piece together our values, comparing our attachment to things versus our devotion to people. We find invariably that, where we have put things before people, we and our human relationships have come to grief.

While we may be tempted to consider the spiritual advice of Jesus as strictly other-worldly, we find time and again that it pertains very much to the world in which we live, because it is integral to the nuts and bolts of our daily human relations.

There is even a tinge of the Golden Rule in the advice of Jesus to put God before things, and to put people before things: "Treat others the way you would have them treat you. This sums up the law and the prophets." (Matthews 7:12)

And how do we want to be treated by others? First and foremost, no doubt, as precious, worthwhile persons. Certainly not as interim things to be used only as conveniences, only as expedients which make life easier for someone but do not interfere with that person's pursuit of money, luxuries and prestige.

Only God is precious. And only people are precious after God, having been made in God's own image and likeness. Because of that fact, I treasure and desire you and nothing material.

Sharp in intensive care after bike accident

Bay St. Louis attorney Jane Sharp remains in intensive care following a bicycle accident Friday morning.

Sharp apparently was riding her bicycle along the sidewalk on Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis when she fell onto an iron fence.

According to Bay Police Investigator Tom Burleson, one of the pointed metal uprights of the fence caused an injury to her head that looked exactly like a gunshot wound.

The examining doctor at Hancock Medical Center, where she was initially taken, said she suffered a fractured skull, the investigator said.

She was transported to Gulf Coast Community Hospital in Gulfport where she is listed in stable but very guarded condition.

"We don't know exactly what happened. She was incoherent when they took her to the hospital," Burleson said.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Governmental agencies, and in some cases civic organizations, have provided recreational facilities for the general public in our area.

There always seems to be a very small percentage of those using these facilities who will also abuse them. I am talking about facilities such as fishing piers, which are very popular in our communities.

A group using the Ulman Avenue Pier Tuesday night is a good example. Rotting crabs, cans, paper and even broken lawn chairs were left behind on the pier.

It seems that since the pier is provided as an amenity to the community, persons using it would have enough courtesy not to leave it in a mess.

I like to walk out on the pier and on occasion may even fish, but I do not want to have to wade through debris to do it. I am sure the majority of residents feel the same way.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this past week the annual Mississippi Press Association's convention was held in Biloxi.

It was good to get together with newspaper folks from across the state, as I have known some for 30 years or so.

It also does one good to talk 'shop' and find out every community appears to have some of the same concerns and needs.

One of the major problems across the state appears to be a lack of job opportunities for residents.

Another major concern of news people is the amount of illiteracy across Mississippi.

It is really hard to believe there are so many people who are unable to read and write, yet statistics prove the numbers.

On Tuesday, three Circuit Court judges will be elected in the district which includes Hancock, Harrison and St. Louis counties.

There are four candidates seeking the three positions, and voters have an opportunity of voting for three, two or one of the candidates.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. and this is a general election so all qualified electors, no matter what party, can vote.

We hope there will be a large voter turnout, and wish good luck to all of the candidates.

Elderly warned of summer heat-related health problems

Summer is a welcomed season for many Mississippians. But it can be dangerous when temperatures rise, especially for the elderly. The Governor's Office of Elderly Affairs Program, Mississippi Council on Aging (MCOA), is reminding older persons to take precautions to avoid heat-related problems such as exhaustion and stroke.

Elderly persons, especially those with heart and circulation problems, diabetes, are most vulnerable to excessive heat," said Dr. David K. Brown, MCOA director.

The best solution during a heat spell is to remain indoors in a cool, air-conditioned room if possible. Older persons without air conditioning should seriously consider going to a cool public place, such as a store or a library, during the hottest part of the day.

In many cities and towns, public shelter for older persons during extremely hot weather is available. Relatives, friends and neighbors should check on the elderly and make sure they know where heat shelters are and have a way to get to them.

MCOA recommends taking cool baths or showers, placing wet towels on the body and using electric fans. Also, the elderly should stay out of direct sunlight and avoid strenuous activities; wear light-colored, loose-fitting clothing; and drink plenty of liquids such as water, juices and iced tea to replace fluids lost by sweating.

Older persons should avoid alcoholic beverages and liquids high in salt that might complicate existing problems, such as high blood pressure.

"It's important that older persons take the heat seriously," Brown warned. "Watch for danger signs such as nausea, dizziness and fatigue. If you suspect a heat-related problem, seek help as soon as possible."

Information on a wide range of subjects relating to the elderly may be obtained by contacting local area agencies on aging, the Mississippi Council on Aging at 960-4310 or the Governor's Service Line at 354-4540, from the Jackson area and 1-800-222-7622 from other areas of the state.

"Now, first off, I want you all to forget I'm a woman."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Legislator urges support for Senate Resolution No. 513

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter to all of the state's newspapers to ask the people to vote for Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 513. This proposed amendment to the state constitution will be on the ballot for a vote of the people in the special judges' election on June 20.

Last year the legislature made a decision that a constitutional convention should not be called at this time. Rather, the lawmakers determined that our century-old constitution should be modernized through the amendment process.

The problem is that the present amendment procedure is not workable. It says that one amendment can relate only to one subject matter. A single section of our constitution may deal with several subjects, and there are 285 sections—often poorly organized and confusing—in the state constitution.

Therefore it could require hundreds of amendments and many years to try to modernize the constitution.

Our people will continue to suffer from unnecessarily inefficient and unresponsive government during that lengthy process.

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 513 will simply give the legislature more flexibility to combine proposed constitutional changes into a smaller number of amendments.

Thus over the next few years the lawmakers could submit to the people an orderly series of proposals for modernizing the constitution.

Every change in the constitution will still have to win the approval of 2/3 of the House of Representatives and 2/3 of the Senate and a majority of the voters before it becomes law—which is the present requirement.

Between 1817 and 1890, the Mississippi constitution was substantially rewritten six times. There has been no thorough revision of the constitution in the past 99 years.

SCR 513 would create a procedure much more cautious and conservative than a constitutional convention. Yet it would allow for genuine constitutional reform, when the legislature and the people agree on what changes need to be made.

I respectfully urge the people of Mississippi to vote for SCR 513 on June 20.

Sincerely,
Eric C. Clark
State Representative

Bay Business Association thanks sheriff, others for festival's success

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Bay St. Louis Business Association, I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank all who gave so generously of their time and efforts to ensure the success of the Tenth Annual Beachfront Festival on June 4.

From those who helped with setting up the booths and stages to those who manned the ticket booths, there are just too many, to name them all. Many who worked on this project were not even business owners, but simply private citizens who believe in the goals of the association.

However, I would like to single out Sheriff Ronnie Peterson for providing the manpower for both cleaning up the festival site before and after the event and also setting up and tearing down the stages. We really couldn't have asked for more willing workers than the trustees from the county jail.

We appreciate Sheriff Peterson's willingness for these prisoners to help pay their debt to society with physical labor. Not only are they growing their own food and catching their own shrimp, they are helping with projects which benefit all the citizens of Hancock County.

Thank you, Sheriff Peterson. Your spirit of cooperation is a real asset in the association's efforts toward building the kind of community in which we would all be proud to live and work.

Sincerely,
Jim Thompson,
President
Bay St. Louis

REPORT FROM THE SENATE

By Senator
Gene Taylor

Taylor explains why he opposes amendment

On Tuesday, June 20 the citizens of Mississippi will decide whether or not they wish to protect a right that they have held since the passage of the Mississippi Constitution.

Since 1890, the people of our state have held the right to accept or reject amendments to our state's constitution on a case by case basis. Each proposed change to the highest law in our state passed or failed on its own merits.

The collective voice of our citizens, when expressed through a voting majority, could exercise a "line item veto" by accepting those changes that were perceived as worthwhile and rejecting those that were unwanted.

It is ironic that at the very time a groundswell of public support is building to give our President a line item veto in hopes of curtailing runaway spending by Congress, that the Mississippi Legislature would place on the ballot a proposal that would take away the "line item veto" that our citizens have held for so many years.

Section 273 of the Mississippi Constitution states "...if more than one amendment shall be submitted at one time, they shall be submitted in such manner and form that the people may vote for or against each amendment separately;" it further states: "the legislature may provide in its resolution for one or more amendments pertaining and relating to the same subject or subject matter, and may provide for one or more amendments to an article of the constitution pertaining and relating to the same subject or subject matter, which may be included in and voted on as one amendment."

The framers of our constitution clearly saw the need to judge each proposed change solely on its own merits. They concisely worded their intention that each amendment be decided on its own merits so that unrelated matters (such as lotteries and right to work) would be decided upon separately.

They provided that related subjects (such as setting the assessment ratios for ad valorem taxes on homesteads, automobiles and farms) could be included in and voted on as one amendment.

And most importantly, they did not limit the number of amendments that could be submitted at one time. They did insist that each would be accepted or rejected separately.

I fail to see any merit in this proposal to "lump things together." I do however see a tremendous potential for abuse if it is accepted.

I think that it is safe to say that our citizens would, in short order, find themselves having to decide whether the good parts contained in these all-or-nothing proposals outweigh the bad.

One very real possibility is that the legislature would use this amendment to weaken our state's tough conflict of interest laws contained in Section 109 of the constitution.

Two times in the past six years the legislature passed and placed on the ballot a proposed amendment that would weaken our tough conflict of interest laws. The citizens of our state overwhelmingly rejected both proposals.

However, if the legislature were given the authority to link this proposal to a very popular one (such as a constitutionally mandated limit on the price of car tags) the result would probably be different.

Imagine the dilemma faced by the voters if they were given the opportunity to mandate a cheaper car tag, but only if they were to allow the politicians to profit from their office.

I have witnessed the vigor that some lawmakers have shown in their repeated attempts to weaken Section 109. May job is to protect the public trust, and I assure you that there would be huge profits available to those who would abuse their authority if the conflict of interest laws were weakened or repealed. Those profits would be paid for by the taxpayers if the same people who are elected to govern our state are allowed to sell it goods and services.

Unfortunately, elections are not always won by honorable people. With this in mind, it is imperative that the law be written in a manner that protects the people of Mississippi from those who would abuse the public trust.

The public trust would not be served by denying the citizens the right to accept or reject each change to our constitution separately based solely on the worth of each proposal. The proposed amendment expands the potential for abuse and will further divide our state government from the citizens that it was created to serve. Worst of all, once this change is included in the constitution it would be virtually impossible to remove.

The Mississippi Constitution of 1890 is far from a perfect document; but, it does contain good provisions. Section 273 is one of the better sections.

It is now in jeopardy and needs your vote to save it. I urge you to vote no.

You can pay for education now or you can pay later

What is good public education worth to Mississippi?

That is a question that Mississippians need to consider this year as we put together a new package of education improvements.

You may have a good job and a decent salary. Your children may go to private schools, or you may not have any children at all.

You may be asking yourself, "Why get involved?" But you need to know that you are paying for the consequences of inadequate education every single day. It costs you hundreds of millions of dollars every year.

Consider this:
—Mississippi spends three times as much per prisoner at Parchman as it does per student in public schools. It's no accident that some 70 percent of all inmates at Parchman are illiterate.

They didn't become illiterate after becoming inmates—they were illiterate when their crimes were committed. It is safe to say that many of these prisoners turned to crime because they could not get a job or hold a job.

Last year, Mississippi spent $7,731 per prisoner at Parchman compared to $2,350 per public school student.

—Mississippians spend $126 million a year on teenage mothers and their

Go ahead and hate my answering machine, but I hate 'call waiting'

Some folks hate my telephone answering machine. I hate "call waiting."

I keep an answering machine because I'm out of The Sea Coast Echo office on assignment a lot and it's easier for people who have personal calls for me to just leave a message at home.

Most callers do, if I leave a funny enough tape on the machine. Others are more reluctant, like my publisher. The few times he has called my house and contacted the machine, the messages always began the same way: "I hate talking to these darned machines, but anyhow, this is Ellis..."

It's human nature to be annoyed when there's a machine on the other end of the phone, but it's also handy to be able to replay the tape to make sure you've gotten the caller's number right.

Also, the people who have these things are usually organized people who do get back to you. I've only had one person who consistently failed to return my calls, but he was a politician who probably wouldn't have returned them if I'd left word with a secretary rather than on his machine.

I think the key to proper use of these things is discretion and manners.

For example, I consider it rude to have the machine on when I'm at home, even though it would be more convenient to turn it on when I get in the bathtub. (If you want your phone to ring, wait until you're alone in the house and get in the tub.)

I think rudeness is what I hate about "call waiting," which I would otherwise find a very helpful service.

Miss Manners, whose column I read only occasionally, is probably having a field day with this new telephone convenience.

I can just see it now—"Gentle Reader, this new service called 'call waiting' is no excuse to be ill-mannered. It is designed to facilitate urgent messages, not to allow you to be rude to one caller while you gossip with another."

That's exactly how I feel about this thing. I have no more objection to "call waiting" in an office than I do to "Please hold, my other line is ringing."

(I mean, I don't mind either one as long as I don't have to listen to crying-in-your-beer country music while I wait. That's depressing; at least all elevator music does is put you to sleep.)

I understand when I call a law enforcement agency or fire department and get put on hold while the person handles a "call waiting." I also feel it's reasonable for people who work for such agencies, including those who are volunteers, to have this particular service in their homes.

What I really detest about the whole thing is the opportunity it gives those unthinking types who put me on hold while I'm trying to conduct personal business when I have very little time.

When I begin my call by saying, "Hi, I can only talk for a minute," I am not just using a figure of speech; I'm supposed to be somewhere 10 minutes ago.

Still, these people who abuse what should be a good service don't get very many calls from me, and probably don't get many from other people who hate being put on hold while they gossip with Aunt Ann who calls every day.

I'm quite happy to have them give Ladner C. Necaise their four-page recipe for barbecued shrimp, but please, not while I'm on hold.

As with anything, I will make a few exceptions—like the one I make for the friend I called the other night. He had to have the "call waiting" service in self-defense, because he has a 13-year-old daughter who has recently been discovered as "a cute girl" by the boys in her school.

I've become rather fond of the child, so I'm always willing to hold on while he's being rude to the little teenage Romeos on the other line.

Bay schools to conduct budget hearing Monday

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board will conduct a public hearing on its annual budget at 7 p.m. Monday in the superintendent's boardroom at Bay Senior High School.

Other business to be discussed includes the building program and personnel.

The hearing is to discuss the proposed budget for the 1989-90 fiscal year, according to District Business Manager Garland Cuevas.

Although complete figures were not yet available, Cuevas said he expects to present several proposals to the board for consideration.

After three meetings in which the budget has been discussed, one of the most recent proposals includes $2.3 million in the district maintenance fund and a seven percent increase over last year.

The amount is an increase over the current year's $1.85 million in district maintenance, which consist of local monies used for the every-day operations.

"We're looking at spending some of our ending balance," Cuevas said. "The budget will also include about $214,000 in new monies if the board accepts the seven percent increase proposal."

Three percent will be for new construction, with $1.5 million of the funding that was expected to be spent on expansion of the high school this fiscal year being carried over into FY 89-90.

Also included will be some new programs, a legislatively mandated increase in the pay for non-unit teachers (teachers whose salaries are not covered by average daily attendance funding) and a one percent increase in employee retirement benefits.

Cuevas said the amended 1988-89 budget approved earlier this week showed that revenues are up somewhat.

Among the major changes in the amended budget, which totals $1,430,500 as opposed to an original budget of $3,019,000, are an increase in incoming federal revenues for indirect cost allocations, which was estimated at $78,420 and is now $158,392.

In addition, the district is receiving $9,556 in federal monies allocated according to the number of children who are dependents of federal employees and attend the schools.

That money was not included in the original budget, Cuevas said.

He said there were some increases in expenditures, but no major increases in any specific area.

ON PATROL

CULTIVATING ARREST

Two persons were arrested in Bay St. Louis on Friday in connection with cultivating a controlled substance.

Bay St. Louis detective Tom Burleson said the arrests were made after a surveillance of more than an hour of a Webb Street lot where three marijuana plants were being grown. Burleson reported those arrested as being, Perry Williams, 27, 865 Webb St. and Virece Johnson, 36, 4101 Banner St., Houston, Texas.

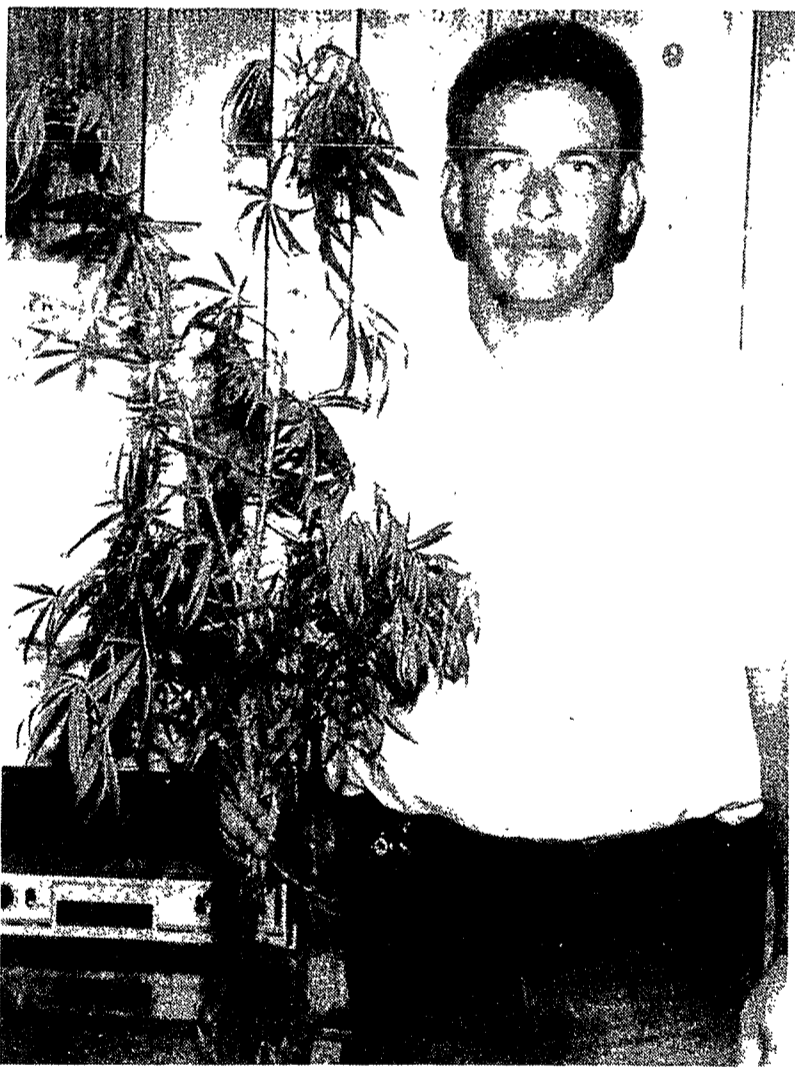

Both were charged with cultivating a controlled substance and bail was set at $10,000 each.

Williams had an additional bond of $280 because, he was served with a contempt of court warrant when he was taken into custody, Burleson said.

Both are scheduled to appear before George Lipscomb, Bay St. Louis Municipal judge on July 5.

A stakeout of the area began at 4:30 p.m. by Burleson and a Bay St. Louis patrolman. The arrests were made at 5:53 p.m.

You can multiply that $126 million cost several times if you include the number of people who are unemployed or unable to enter the work force.

Last year, education was the top concern of nearly 400 Mississippi company executives surveyed by the Business and Industry Political Education Committee known as BIPEC.

The same is true at the national level. The Conference Board—a private, non-profit business research group—said last year that education was the top concern of businesses throughout the country.

Reading with Ronald

Hancock County libraries to host Ronald McDonald Tuesday

Ronald McDonald, loves to read! And he's sharing his love of reading with kids in his brand new show, "Bookin' with Ronald McDonald."

Ronald will present this special program next week to two Hancock County libraries for the 300 school-aged children registered in the library system's 1989 Summer Reading Program.

"Bookin' with Ronald McDonald" is 15 minutes of educational fun, with Ronald taking kids on exciting reading adventures that demonstrate the importance of knowing how to read, spell and use the dictionary.

Bookin' with Ronald McDonald will take place at the "McLibrary," a fun-filled, animated set that serves as a backdrop for Ronald's reading lessons.

Joining Ronald at the "McLibrary," are his friends, "Stogie the Bookworm" and "D-I-C-T-I-O-N-A-R-Y."

Both characters interact with Ronald and his young friends to bring home messages about the importance of learning to read. True to Ronald McDonald shows, there are plenty of magic, games and fun.

Because of space limitations, only the 300 children registered with the Summer Reading Program are eligible to attend the program. Free passes are required and may be obtained at any of the three libraries.

The show will be presented on Tuesday, June 20 at Waveland Library at 10 a.m. and at the City-County Library at 1:30 p.m. Children registered in the Summer Reading Program at the Kiln Library are requested to attend the 1:30 p.m. showing at the City-County Library.

The new show is a goal of the Greater New Orleans McDonald's owner/operators, who realize the importance of an elementary-level literacy focus.

"We want to reach children right off the bat in elementary school," says Bud Somerville, McDonald's owner/operator, "and we want them to realize that reading is fun and important. Because of Ronald McDonald's natural rapport with kids, he is an ideal vehicle to bring this lesson to the children."

Miss. Conference United Methodists herald 'new beginnings' for state

Special to the Echo
"This is a day of new beginnings, not just in organization, but in spirit. I sense that there is a new spirit that is leading us in Mississippi to have a new vision," proclaimed Bishop Robert C. Morgan in the opening worship for the merged Mississippi Conference of The United Methodist Church. The service was held in the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum which was filled with laity and clergy from the entire state.

They came in automobiles, vans and church buses. They came to worship and to celebrate the merger of the Mississippi Conference and the North Mississippi Conference of The United Methodist Church. The mood of the service was, indeed, celebrative.

From spirited singing of hymns, to the stirring anthems of a 1,000-voice choir and orchestra, to Kathy Thibodeaux's leading worship through dance, accompanied by 'We Shall Behold Him,' the thousands in attendance were caught up in the exultant spirit of the worship.

Bishop Morgan, resident United Methodist bishop in Mississippi, said that the new spirit he senses includes new vision, a new understanding of who we are as the body of Christ, and a different spirit, a "can do" spirit among Mississippi United Methodists.

"What I sense more than anything else is the working of the Holy Spirit in the lives of our people," Morgan added. "My expectation is that this will be a day of new beginnings."

Early in the service, special greetings were brought to the Conference by the bishop of the Jackson Diocese of the Catholic Church, by Lieutenant Governor Brad Dye and Governor Ray Mabus.

The Most Reverend William R. Houck, representing the religious community in Mississippi said, "I salute you for your dedication...I salute you for your commitment to model your lives after the example of Christ's servanthood, and I offer you my sincere prayers and best wishes."

Lieutenant Governor Dye, a United Methodist lay person, stated that United Methodists have always been one in Mississippi in spirit. "I am glad we are one now in actuality," he added.

Governor Mabus, also a United Methodist, spoke of the scriptural admonition that there be no division among persons in the church. He called for unity of spirit and purpose that in a decade which has "sanctified selfishness," the church might pass on to our children such qualities as justice, faith and brotherhood, "not just as abstract ideas, but woven into the fabric of our lives together."

At the heart of the service was a time for "Covenant Renewal," led by Bishop Morgan, in which clergy and laity expressed their renewed and continuing covenant of faith and service to God.

Bishop Morgan led, also in a "Litany for the Uniting of The Two Conferences," which concluded, "With grateful hearts for all that has gone before, and looking to new opportunities before us, we press on toward our high calling in Christ Jesus our Lord."

Concern over children leads couple, citizens into recreation program

BY DENA BISNETTE

When Calvin and Herta Smith moved to Bay St. Louis in 1979, they found no municipal pool, no community centers and recreation programs for children and teenagers.

Now, 10 years later, both are working with Hancock County Recreation Association, a group they helped start.

Calvin Smith is a Bay St. Louis native who came home after living for many years in Laurel, Md. He and his wife had been involved in nationally recognized recreational programs there for a number of years and wanted to provide activities for young people.

"I just drove around when I got here. People must have thought I was crazy," Herta said. "I couldn't find a pool or community center. I went to the Chamber of Commerce to ask about it and, frankly, I was discouraged when I found out there wasn't much for children who weren't athletically inclined."

"This community really needs to be commended for its sports programs," she said, explaining that she found well-developed programs and good facilities here.

She and her husband began trying to interest people in a more generalized recreation program but had little initial success because, as Herta explained it, "the political climate just wasn't right."

same matter. From that meeting, Hancock County Recreation Association formed almost immediately.

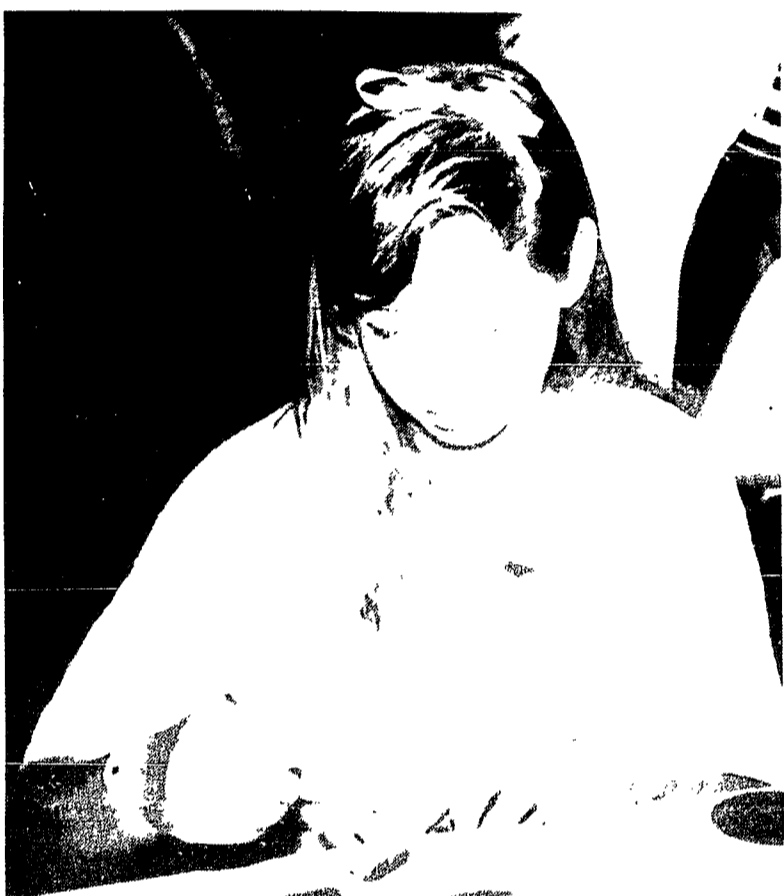

Those instrumental in starting the association or currently serving as officers include Carlos Arnold of Waveland Civic Association; Frank Baktis, chairman; Ruth Thompson, secretary; and Jim Thompson, treasurer.

The group meets on the first

Louis Police Department's 'Officer Friendly' and a lesson on the American Flag by Mary Caillier of American Legion Post 77's Auxiliary Unit.

Underwood made her presentation Tuesday.

Herta said what particularly reinforced her ambitions regarding expansion of the recreation program was a comment by Underwood about latchkey children. According to

Katie Pursley

Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. in The Meeting Place next to Ruth's Bakery.

Last summer, the association was able to offer a Saturday morning program featuring arts and crafts and organized play, Smith said.

This year, the program has grown to three days a week at Waveland Elementary School. A sampling of a calendar for a week included arts and crafts on Monday, tap dancing lessons, a guest's presentation and board games on Tuesday and movies and outdoor games on Wednesday.

Guest presentations scheduled during the current program, which continues through July 7, include a talk by Hancock County Home Economist Darlene Underwood on being at home alone, a visit from Bay St.

an informal survey she had taken, more than half the school-age youngsters in Bay St. Louis and Waveland are latchkey children.

"These children are parked in front of the TV all summer," Herta said.

"Or, they go out and get into trouble," her husband added. "Even youngsters who don't get into trouble are not realizing their potential," she answered.

Herta is fond of quoting Joseph Lee, a pioneer in the recreation field, who describes the purpose of recreation as being "to liberate the power of expression of people and communities—to help each of us find our voice...to set forth in sports, art, drama, music and hundreds of other forms of play what it is they have all along been trying to say which could not get itself expressed within the confines of their work."

"Recreation should be where we can really express ourselves, no matter what it is. You don't have to be good to enjoy recreation," Herta said, adding that she feels the opportunity for self-expression should be offered to all community children.

"At Waveland, I'm seeing a kind of dedication I haven't seen in years. Some of these people have rearranged their working schedules to do this," Herta said, "and the local businesses, school system and political leaders have all been very supportive."

After the summer program, the association wants to provide afterschool programs, something which was started last year; Saturday morning programs; and activities at centers in communities like Pearlington, Kiln and Clermont Harbor. Volunteers and funding are both needed. Much of the funding for the program now comes from the men's basketball league Calvin has organized, or from donations. Because many donors choose to provide materials, cash donations are used to sponsor children can not pay

"Recreation should be where we can really express ourselves, no matter what it is."

Herta Smith

The association is now a non-profit corporation and may be eligible for grant money, but the Smiths are hoping to get funds from several sources while making the programs as self-supporting as possible. That way, if some funding is cut, the programs will not suffer.

"We want to build a kind of mixture of volunteers and paid staff to truly serve all the recreational needs of every citizen in Hancock County, young or old, handicapped or not," Herta said.

She feels recreational activities can inspire youngsters in positive ways, the way she was influenced the first time she substituted for a community center volunteer and discovered her own talent for organization, or the way her daughter Katherine, now a student at Livingston University, has been—the young woman is considering a career in special education recreation.

"If we can provide youngsters with that significant emotional event, I hope 20 years down the road when they are working with that, that memory will flash in their minds," Herta said.

She hopes that memory will stimulate them to give something back to their own communities.

Anyone interested in volunteering, donating or enrolling a child in the summer program may contact the Smiths at 467-0470.

To do that, expansion is necessary, the Smiths stated. Their first hope is to get enough volunteers to expand the current program to a second location at Bay Junior High.

At Waveland, the volunteers include Herta and Calvin Smith, their 15-year-old son Brandon, Billy Adams, Susan

Excessive tanning poses risk of skin cancer

The evidence is clear that repeated and persistent exposure to sunlight can be one of the major factors in causing cancer of the skin in susceptible persons.

The Mississippi State Medical Association points out that skin cancer has long been an occupational hazard to the farmer, sailor and rancher. Ardent outdoor sportsmen and sun worshippers share the same risk. Cancer of the skin occurs more often in the South and Southwest, areas noted for sunny climates. Skin cancer occurs most frequently on exposed parts of the body—face, ears, hands or neck. Skin cancer occurs more often in light-skinned than in dark-skinned persons.

Excessive sunlight ages the skin. Years of overexposure to the sun will result in leathery texture, wrinkles, skin folds and sagging skin. Blotchy pigmentation will replace desired tan.

Dermatologists (medical skin specialists) recommend the regular use of sunscreens agents by outdoor workers and others who continually expose themselves to the sun.

Commonly used drugs such as antibacterial agents in medicated soaps, drugs to control high blood pressure, oral anti-diabetic drugs, some tranquilizers and some antibiotics can cause the skin to become photosensitive to sunlight.

The skin may burn on even slight exposure. These individuals must avoid direct sunlight as much as possible, and wear long-sleeved garments and wide-brimmed hats when out of doors.

Schott earns degree

The University of South Alabama College of Medicine has announced its 1989 graduates, the 14th class to receive graduate medical education from the university.

More than 800 physicians have graduated from the USA College of Medicine since classes began on Jan. 3, 1973.

Anne Schott of Waveland was among the doctors who graduated at the University of South Alabama. She also earned her bachelor of science degree in chemistry from the university. Schott is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent F. Schott of Waveland.

She will complete her residency in internal medicine at the University of Virginia.

GOOD FOOD BUYS

Take note when buying beef

The key to smart shopping in terms of quality vs. cost is consumer knowledge. This is particularly true when buying meat.

Just as meat purchases take up the greatest percentage of the food dollar, they also frequently take up the greatest percentage of shopping time. Trying to select the leanest, juiciest and most flavorful meat cuts can be a laborious task.

Seemingly, the buying of beef presents a perplexing situation for many shoppers. There is a lot to know about beef and the factors which affect its tenderness.

The new "select" grade of beef brings leaner cuts to market. Also the closer trim cuts fat. However, less fat does mean slightly less flavor and juiciness.

Proper selection and preparation of various cuts is even more important. Take, for instance, the primal round. How to decide which retail cut is coming from this section, to begin with.

As to the USDA grade and the cooking method to be used, there are two other factors to consider: the muscular composition of the cut and where it comes from on the animal.

loin tip, bottom round, eye of the round, rump and heel. The rump and heel are composed of combination of muscles.

The subprimal cuts then yield the listed retail cuts (as well as hamburger, stew beef, kabobs, etc): top round steak and roast, sirloin tip steak and roast, bottom round steak and roast, eye of the round roast, full-cut round steak and roast, rump roast and heel of the round roast.

Top round is composed of a lightly exercised muscle which runs down the inside of the steer's leg. Consequently, the top round is the most tender of all the primal round cuts.

The first cut of the top round is frequently sold as Beef London Broil and is very tender. The origin of the cut from the carcass is indicated by the presence of a "secondary muscle." The most tender cuts have only the "primary" top round muscle.

As the meat moves toward the hoof, a secondary muscle appears between the primary muscle and the exterior fat layer. (Less tender round cuts approach the hoof and more tender cuts approach the mid-section.)

Sirloin tip should not be thought of as the true sirloin because it lacks the juiciness and tenderness of the true sirloin.

Yet, the sirloin tip is still a good buy because it is boneless and has little waste. Some cuts from the sirloin tip are more tender than some cuts from the top round.

Bottom round originates closer to the hoof of the steer. Muscles in this area receive far greater exercise than those of the top round, thus the difference in the tenderness of the two muscles. The bottom round has good flavor but many require longer moist heat cooking.

Eye of the round is the smallest and least tender of the major muscles. Many consumers mistake it for the tenderloin. It is flavorful with lots of lean and little waste.

Full-cut round contains all four major muscles of the round. Tenderness is noted by the fat slab that lies in the middle of the full cut between the bottom and top muscles. The slab becomes thicker as it approaches the hoof.

Bone up on your knowledge of beef. It could save time and money at the retail meat counter. If cutting back on fat, do not eliminate red meats from your diet. Simply use them in moderation. A 3 oz. serving is the recommended amount. Most servings are far more than 3 ounces.

Enjoy red meats in combination with the excellent home grown vegetables and fruits you'll find at the farmers markets across Mississippi.

Fresh fruit, available in such quantities at our local supermarkets these summer days, is a definite winner. It's a bonus when something so delicious is also so easy to eat for your health's sake.

Summer's bounty of fresh fruit is a definite winner when it comes to health. It's a bonus when something so delicious is also so easy to eat for your health's sake.

WATERMELON ICE. This is an old Southern favorite. Y'all can serve it in cups, for exact portions depend upon what you like and so on.

Cut the pulp of a watermelon in half a large ripe watermelon and extract the pulp. Add sugar or by hand as you like. Juice add the juice of two lemons and four oranges and to each add chunks of the watermelon also.

Stir in a cup of sugar and freeze in ice trays. Or, if you have a cranked freezer, freeze in one. When lightly frozen add a beaten egg white and continue freezing.

Serve in the scooped-out melon rind, or in glasses or bowls. Garnish with fresh mint and seedless grapes.

For an ultra-good and easy treat, make the round of the supermarkets—pick up some of those luscious peaches at Winn-Dixie and a couple of the large canteloupes at Delchamps, also, along with honeydew melon from National, add in some of the seedless grapes and apples, and so on, offered in abundance just now. Cut them all up to fill a large bowl and just enjoy "au naturel" any time of day.

Or, serve with a yogurt or sour cream dip—it's Dairy Month, remember, with special deals at all the stores! Or, for a super healthy good dip, try:

CHEESECAKE FRUIT DIP
1 8 oz. pkg. Philadelphia cream cheese
1 Tbsp. grated orange rind
1 7 oz. jar marshmallow cream

Dash of ginger
Combine softened cream cheese and marshmallow cream till well blended. Stir in rind and ginger, and serve as a dip for fruit.

Winn-Dixie's Beef sale of "Freezer Favorites" offers special savings on whole bottom rounds and whole briskets (sliced free) as well as trimmed briskets, also specials on steaks. And Jitney Jungle has a special on beef chuck roasts and steaks. Here's:

MEXICAN POT ROAST
4 lb. beef roast
1 onion, chopped
1 bell (green) pepper, chopped

1 lb. tomatoes, cut up
1 Tbsp. sugar
2 bay leaves
1 clove garlic, crushed
1/4 cup olive oil
1/4 tsp. marjoram
1/4 tsp. cinnamon
1 cup dry white wine
Salt, pepper as desired

Mix the bay leaves, marjoram, garlic, green pepper and onion together and rub mixture on the meat. Let stand for three hours then heat the oil in a heavy Dutch Oven or other heavy pot, add the meat and brown on all sides.

Add the tomatoes, sugar, cinnamon, wine, vinegar and pepper and salt. Cover, and simmer for 3 1/2 hours until tender. Serve with rice or noodles. (You may use canned tomatoes if you wish.)

NABOKOV

Russian-born Vladimir Nabokov is considered to be one of the world's greatest contemporary authors. Yet, many may not know that Nabokov was as prolific with the spoken word as he was with the written word. For over a decade, he lectured on European and Russian literature at Cornell University.

Christopher Plummer portrays Nabokov the lecturer in 'Nabokov of Kafka,' airing at 10:30 p.m., Monday, June 26 on Mississippi ETV.

As Nabokov, Plummer reenacts an enthralling lecture on Franz Kafka's short story, 'The Metamorphosis,' and provides his own personal insight into Nabokov and his work.

Fathers are competent too!

The traditional belief is that mothers are more competent at taking care of children and thus should have the major responsibility for child care, especially for very young children.

Fathers often are seen as "second" to mothers, as though they do not have the same capacity for nurturing. They are viewed as less sensitive to the needs of children. Such beliefs have roots in the view that nurturing and sensitivity are solely maternal instincts.

There is surprisingly little research to support this explanation of parental roles.

Research finds that fathers have the potential to be as capable as mothers in nurturing children. The ability to love and respond to infants is a characteristic of humans rather than of females alone.

When differences do occur between mothers and fathers, they probably are due to the interaction between biological factors and differences in experience, social expectations and socialization.

Studies of father-infant attachment are all consistent in stating that children beginning around six months of age show attachment behaviors to their fathers in much the same way as they display them toward their mothers.

Fathers can and should be prominent figures in children's development. Biological disposition is minimal in explaining why so many fathers are not involved in child care. Lack of experience with infants, social expectations and socialization are more likely to play a major role in the tendency.

Although, fathers and mothers are equally capable, and infants develop strong relationships with both parents, parents probably don't have the same experience with and the same influences on their children.

Researchers have found differences between fathers and mothers in the style of interaction with their children.

The strongest possible nurturing is provided when both parents are active in caring for their children.
